About Akorbi

Akorbi is a leading language services provider based in the United States. Our company works in more than 170 languages, with a wide range of clients from all over the world.

Company History

Claudia Mirza founded Akorbi in 2003 when a Spanish-language interpreter failed to show up at a horse racing seminar in San Antonio, Texas, at a race track where her father was working. The organizers of the seminar were so impressed with Claudia's abilities, she went to work on translating the written training materials. Akorbi grew from there to include clients such as Southwest Airlines, 3M, and Dallas Area Rapid Transit.

Fast-Growing Firm

Since then, Akorbi has become a language service provider powerhouse. We're the 12th-largest LSP in the United States as named by Nimdzi Insights. We have team members in the United States, Argentina, Colombia, Czech Republic, Mexico, India, Cape Verde, and Chile. Our founders, Claudia and Adam Mirza, have been featured on The American Dream on the Bloomberg channel and in the publications Forbes, Inc., TIME, and Fortune.

Women-Led Business

Akorbi is the 13th-fastest-growing woman/owned led company in the world, according to the Women Presidents' Organization. We're also the largest women-owned LSP in the United States. We take our status as a women-owned business seriously, and we're committed to diversity and inclusivity in all aspects of our company.

The women-owned element of Akorbi has been a deciding factor for our relationships with many clients, including Google, Apple, Aetna, CVS, and more.
